Man Admits Using Ax To Kill Common-Law Wife; Hauls Body Two Weeks

LOS ANGELES, July 26—Ralph W. Griggs, 45, a mechanic, was held on a charge of murder today after confessing he killed his common-law wife with an ax and then carried the body in the back of his car for two weeks while he drove aimlessly about.

The woman was said to be Gladys Long, 36. Griggs' arrest came after he had been trapped by a parking lot attendant and had been confronted with the body of the woman, wrapped in a quilt and stuffed in the rumble seat of the car.

Officers said Griggs was too dazed to tell them where the slaying took place.

"I did it because she wanted to leave me," the thin, baldish man told police.

From his rambling story officers said they learned he apparently killed the woman about two weeks ago at a camp near Victorville, not far from Los Angeles.

"I was chopping wood," officers quoted him as saying. "So when she said she was leaving me, I hit her in the head."

His story sent detectives to a Los Angeles apartment house where they learned the couple had been living for about a year until July 10, when they left with all their possessions.

Late yesterday Griggs drove his car into a parking lot in the southern section of the city and asked an attendant to drive him to a certain location because he was "too drunk to drive." When the attendant took the wheel he said he noticed an unnatural odor, but Griggs told him it was a deer he had killed several days ago.

Later when Griggs had the attendant stop at another parking lot and attempt to sell the car for $5 the body was discovered.

LONDON CLAIMS 28 SHOT DOWN, ATTACK BALKED

At Least 11 Of Destroyed Craft Were Bombers, Says Empire Spokesman

King George Takes Refuge In Shelter While Touring Naval Defenses

LONDON, July 26—German planes raided southeastern England again today dropping bombs on one town and causing an unspecified number of casualties.

Several houses and a school were damaged, according to reports received in London.

A German bomber was shot down in southwest England this morning. A British farmer captured the pilot. The three other members of the crew were killed.

Meanwhile, an official British announcement claimed that 28 German planes were destroyed in yesterday's air battles over Britain and the English Channel.

An official statement said it was established that 28 enemy planes had been shot down during yesterday's combats, in which hundreds of German planes were repelled.

In contrast to the heavy German losses, it was stated, only five British fighting planes were lost.

This morning's air ministry announcement stated that only "slight" German aerial activity occurred during the night over southeastern and southwestern England and Wales.

Raid Resumed

Bombs were dropped near a town in East Anglia, but no casualties or damages were reported in any area, the announcement added.

Late this morning enemy planes were reported over southeastern England.

MARTINS FERRY, July 26—

Charles M. Woodruff, 44, of Brewster, fireman on a Wheeling and Lake Erie freight train which plowed into a landslide near Uniondale in Harrison County, died early today of scalds received when the locomotive rolled over an embankment after hitting the slide.

E. M. Hines of Massillon, engineer on the locomotive, was reported in serious condition in a Martins Ferry Hospital of scalds received in the wreck.

After hitting the slide, the locomotive somersaulted and pulled 12 cars of iron ore over the embankment.

The difference of opinion was revealed by the Argentine delegate, Dr. Leopoldo Melo, who said the most important resolution submitted by Argentina calls on the Havana conference to approve a proposition that European possessions in the Americas should determine their own destinies.

Scope of Army Training Put in Congress' Hands

WASHINGTON, July 26—Congress will have control over the scope of the compulsory military training program through specific regulation of funds, it was disclosed today.

Members of the senate military affairs committee revealed that they wrote into the pending conscription bill language which will prohibit the President from inducting men into military service until funds have first been earmarked and appropriated by congress.

This section of the measure was interpreted by several committee members as giving congress broad powers over the scope of the program through control of the purse strings. It precludes, they said, the possibility of using general funds to be made up later by deficiency appropriations.

Sen. Johnson (D) Colo., a member of the committee, said: "What we have done is to give congress control of conscription by controlling the purse strings, which is absolutely essential unless we want to go into a dictatorship."

Adopted unanimously by the committee, the section reads: "Notwithstanding the provisions of this act, the President shall have no authority to induct persons into the land and naval forces of the United States until con-

Youthful Nazi Flyer, Frightened to Death, Caught By Two Women

LONDON, July 26—Britain had two more heroines today—a 19-year-old servant girl, Mavis Young and her mistress, Mrs. Lee Bailey, who captured an 18-year-old German aviator who had parachuted to earth near their residence.

Miss Young left an air raid shelter in southwest England last night amid barrages of anti-aircraft fire to extinguish a forgotten stove.

On the way to the house she saw the German aviator and with the aid of Mrs. Bailey captured him.

They took the youthful Nazi into the house and gave him a stiff drink because he had been shaken up in a parachute drop to earth.

"The young chap seemed very frightened when the local guardsmen came up. We could see the fear of death in his face," said the girl in describing the incident.

"Madame asked me to get some whisky and I returned with cigarettes as well. When we gave him these he improved considerably. He grabbed and kissed my hand and wept."

"The Germans must tell their airmen that we will kill any who are captured for he obviously was shaken."

"His two companions also were captured, but the fourth flier's parachute failed to open and he dropped like a stone."

"The man was too young and too weak to frighten me. We had to prop him against the house to pour the whisky down his throat."

HAVANA, July 26—A definite conflict of opinion between the United States and Argentina on the question of European colonies in the Western Hemisphere was brought into the open today following another plenary session of the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers.

Officials connected with the parity made no secret of the fact that Argentine opposition to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's plan for a Pan American "trusteeship" over such colonies, should such action become necessary has sharpened the divergence between Washington and Buenos Aires.

Meanwhile, reports of a disagreement between Cuba and the United States regarding the latter's economic proposals were emphatically denied by a member of the Cuban delegation.

The peace preservation and economic committees held sessions throughout the morning while sub-committees coordinated the various proposals.

Hull's plan is aimed at preventing transfer of European colonies in the Western Hemisphere from one non-European nation to another—specifically from defeated European countries to Nazi Germany.

SEVEN MORE DESTROYERS TO BE RECONDITIONED

PHILADELPHIA, July 26—Seven more reconditioned destroyers of World War vintage were en route from the Philadelphia navy yard today to join Uncle Sam's Atlantic ocean neutrality patrol.

This brings to 15 the total number of ships of this type to leave the yard since the current war emergency arose. The warcraft are known as "four-stackers" and were capable of 35 knots per hour when new. London Reports Approach From Romania's Ruler For Visitation

SALZBURG CONFAB OPENS

Empire Moves Farther From Playboy As His Nation Bends Toward Reich

LONDON, July 26—Possibility that King Carol of Romania may come or attempt to come to England to seek relief from the political witch's cauldron in the Balkans was discussed in the British capital today.

Unconfirmed reports circulated in usually well informed diplomatic quarters that Carol has quietly approached the British government.

He is said to have asked whether it would be possible for him to enjoy at least a temporary sojourn in England in view of the allegedly growing difficulty of his position in Romania owing to the rapid Nazification of his country.

(Editor's Note: It is at least noteworthy that this report sprang up in London simultaneously with the opening at Salzburg, Germany, of a conference among German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Romanian Premier Ion Giguiru and Foreign Minister Mihail Manolescu regarding Romania's future.)

Von Ribbentrop is expected to carry these plans forward in his talks with the Romanians today and with Bulgarian statesmen tomorrow.)

The reports in London diplomatic circles stated that King Carol's inquiries regarding a "vacation" in England met with an "extremely unsympathetic reception" in interested British quarters.

"Even a dog has the right to a free trial in this country," Judge Johnson said, "while in Russia they take humans out and shoot them without benefit of trial."

Showers Predicted After Cooler Air Moves Into Numerous States; Recordings Of 100 Reported In Various Cities Of State

HAILSTONES BREAK 8,000 WINDOWS

Allentown Scene Of Storm; Middlewestern Regions Visited By Gales; New York Area Suffers From High Humidity

Parts of the nation breathed a sigh of relief today as fast-moving masses of cool air, accompanied by high winds, showers and thunderstorms, broke the backbone of an eight-day heat wave during which more than 300 persons died of drowning or prostration.

A major portion of the heat-ridden areas already had received swift relief late yesterday and last night, and forecasters assured the balance of the country that cooler temperatures would arrive either tonight or tomorrow.

At the nation's capital, thundershowers and northwest winds were promised to break the heat wave tomorrow. Eight prostrations were reported there as the temperature rose to 95. Millions still suffered in the New York area today from humidity, near the saturation point, but relief was in sight for late tomorrow. New York City thermometers reached a high of 87 yesterday.

New England, spared the full force of the heat, was promised cooler temperatures and some relief from humidity tomorrow. Ohio, with a death toll of 40, still sweltered today, but was expected to get relief tonight. Temperatures yesterday rose to 100 at Youngstown, 99 at Sandusky, and 96 at Columbus and Cincinnati.

Storm Hits Allentown

Hailstones as big as golf balls broke 8,000 windows at Allentown, Pa., overnight. The forecast was for cooler tonight or tomorrow after a day in which the mercury climbed to 91 at Philadelphia, 99 at Harrisburg and 95 at Pittsburgh.

From Iowa, where serious damage to the corn crop had been feared, it was reported that crop damage had been halted by sharply cooler weather. Temperatures there plummeted down to the low 80's and high 70's.

Kansas City, St. Louis and Springfield, Ill., still felt oppressive heat beginning this morning, but hoped for relief later in the day. The mercury reached 102 at Kansas City and Springfield yesterday, and touched 100 at St. Louis.

Texas welcomed a forecast for somewhat cooler following a high of 96 at Dallas. None of the heat-scorched sections, including virtually the entire nation, was left without either actual relief or a forecast that it would arrive soon.

SOLONS SEE BOMBPROOF STRUCTURE CONSTRUCTED

WASHINGTON, July 26—If the country should need bomb-proof fortifications and air-raid shelters in a hurry, Karl Bilner, Philadelphia inventor, demonstrated how it can be done.

A group of army officers and members of congress yesterday watched his workmen build a dome-shaped concrete pillbox in five hours, including the digging of the trench and underground entrance. Senators Sheppard, Guffey and Reynolds were among the spectators.

The fortress had three gun openings and could accommodate six men.

EVEN DOGS HAVE RIGHT TO TRIAL IN THIS NATION

XENIA, July 26—Every dog has his day, especially during dog days, and a collie owned by Stanley Nicely, of near Xenia, had his in Common Pleas Court today. Facing the death penalty on charges of sheep-killing, the big collie was acquitted by Judge Frank L. Johnson for "lack of evidence."

"Even a dog has the right to a free trial in this country," Judge Johnson said, "while in Russia they take humans out and shoot them without benefit of trial."

Allentown Scene Of Storm; Middlewestern Regions Visited By Gales; New York Area Suffers From High Humidity

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Parts of the nation breathed a sigh of relief today as fast-moving masses of cool air, accompanied by high winds, showers and thunderstorms, broke the backbone of an eight-day heat wave during which more than 300 persons died of drowning or prostration.

A major portion of the heat-ridden areas already had received swift relief late yesterday and last night, and forecasters assured the balance of the country that cooler temperatures would arrive either tonight or tomorrow.

At the nation's capital, thundershowers and northwest winds were promised to break the heat wave tomorrow. Eight prostrations were reported there as the temperature rose to 95. Millions still suffered in the New York area today from humidity, near the saturation point, but relief was in sight for late tomorrow. New York City thermometers reached a high of 87 yesterday.

New England, spared the full force of the heat, was promised cooler temperatures and some relief from humidity tomorrow. Ohio, with a death toll of 40, still sweltered today, but was expected to get relief tonight. Temperatures yesterday rose to 100 at Youngstown, 99 at Sandusky, and 96 at Columbus and Cincinnati.

Storm Hits Allentown

Hailstones as big as golf balls broke 8,000 windows at Allentown, Pa., overnight. The forecast was for cooler tonight or tomorrow after a day in which the mercury climbed to 91 at Philadelphia, 99 at Harrisburg and 95 at Pittsburg.

From Iowa, where serious damage to the corn crop had been feared, it was reported that crop damage had been halted by sharply cooler weather. Temperatures there plummeted down to the low 80's and high 70's.

Kansas City, St. Louis and Springfield, Ill., still felt oppressive heat beginning this morning, but hoped for relief later in the day. The mercury reached 102 at Kansas City and Springfield yesterday, and touched 100 at St. Louis.

Texas welcomed a forecast for somewhat cooler following a high of 96 at Dallas. None of the heat-scorched sections, including virtually the entire nation, was left

SOLONS SEE BOMBPROOF STRUCTURE CONSTRUCTED

WASHINGTON, July 26 — If the country should need bomb-proof fortifications and air-raid shelters in a hurry, Karl Billner, Philadelphia inventor, demonstrated how it can be done.

A group of army officers and members of congress yesterday watched his workmen build a dome-shaped concrete pillbox in five hours, including the digging of the trench and underground entrance. Senators Sheppard, Guffey and Reynolds were among the spectators.

The fortress had three gun openings and could accommodate six men.

suffered under a 100-degree mark. Indiana gasped for breath yesterday and early today, eagerly waiting the relief promised for tonight. La Porte reported the highest temperature in the state, 105, with a great many others recording 100 or more. Drownings and heat prostrations cost ten lives.

On the Pacific Coast, temperatures were reported seasonable. But inland cities suffered. Sacramento, Calif., had a high of 96, Fresno 102 and Yuma, Ariz., 104. The relief arrived suddenly in Chicago last night, after the mercury had climbed above 100 degrees for the second successive day—the fourth time in history this has occurred. At 5 p. m., the temperature was 101; at 8 p. m., it was still 97; but by 10 p. m. it had power-dived to 73.

The cooling winds, which earlier had swept over the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, were accompanied by showers, local windstorms and electrical displays. Many trees were blown down, a barn was struck by lightning and burned with a loss of $10,000, and several boats were capsized.

Forecasts for cooler were issued for the states to which the cooling winds had not yet penetrated. These included Nebraska, where the mercury rocketed to 112 at Lincoln and 108 at Omaha yesterday, and Indiana, which felt 105-degree heat at Laporte yesterday.

Ohio To Be Last

The Ohio Valley appeared destined to be one of the last sections to gain succor from blazing heat, but cooler was forecast for Ohio tonight and for Kentucky, West Virginia, and southern Indiana tomorrow. Thunderstorms in each state were to follow in the wake of the heat.

Showers, thunderstorms and cooler likewise were forecast farther east, to arrive either today or tomorrow in such states as New York, Vermont, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Michigan, where a four-year high of 96 was equalled at Detroit yesterday, likewise was to feel more moderate temperatures sometime today. The state had one of the highest death tolls in the country, with 26 victims of drowning and 12 dead of prostration. Rocky Mountain states obtained relief yesterday.

LONDON CLAIMS 28 SHOT DOWN, ATTACK BALKED

were still active over southeastern and southwestern England. Of the German planes knocked out of the skies yesterday's gigantic engagements, at least 11 were bombers, according to an air ministry communique.

The swarms of German planes swooped down from tremendous altitudes to attack convoys along the coast, but it was claimed that the attacks failed to sink any ships as British anti-aircraft batteries and fighting planes drove off the raiders.

The most intense fighting occurred over the English Channel, where hundreds of planes wheeled and circled in the air in one of the great aerial combats ever staged. Both British Spitfires and Hurricanes (fast fighting planes) participated in the battles.

At the height of the battle, which excited observers watched from the southeast coast, the tangle of machines in the air looked like a huge herd of flies.

Roaring motors, rattling machine guns, anti-aircraft shell fire and bursting bombs which sent great columns of water spouting skyward as they fell combined to produce a spectacle that kept watchers on edge for hours.

Two "Disappear"

One eye-witness said he saw two planes "completely disappear" as the result of direct shell hits during the seemingly continuous whirl of "dog fights."

The combats lasted throughout the afternoon as waves of bombers fought a death struggle against waves of Hurricanes and Spitfires. British warships joined in, hurling up "flaming oil" and pompons in ceaseless blast of fire against the Nazi raiders.

For 10 minutes during the fight, King George VI took refuge in an air raid shelter on the south coast, where he was conducting a tour of naval establishments.

The monarch had completed an inspection of recruits when the air raid warning was sounded. While the men and boys marched off in orderly fashion, the king, accompanied by Admiral Sir William James, motored to a nearby shelter.

The marching men cheered as the monarch drove slowly past.

Later King George boarded, Dutch, Polish, Norwegian and French warships and later entrained for London.

When he emerged from the shelter after the Nazi raiders passed, the king was smoking a cigarette. He calmly asked what direction the raiders had taken and watched R. A. F. planes flying to intercept them. Then he said:

"I think we might go on now."

ROME, July 26 — "Effective" bombardment of Gibraltar by Italian war planes was officially announced today in the Italian war communique which said:

"The damage done by our bombing of the oil depots at Haifa (Palestine) was considerable, as the enemy admits. The fire could be controlled only after many hours."

An official announcement also claimed that three other merchant vessels were damaged so severely that "their loss can be assumed," and that two British destroyers also were badly damaged.

The raid was carried out late yesterday afternoon and in the early evening over the channel.

Stuka dive bombers and other types of German planes participated in the raid, which sank ships totalling 43,000 tons, according to the high command. The damaged vessels, excluding the destroyers, totalled 12,000 tons, the statement added.

KING CAROL MAY SEEK HAVEN ON ENGLAND'S SOIL

that Carol has not put up much of a fight against Germany and has thus done little to retain the friendship of England.

Both the British and Romanians, however, are now strenuously denying that any open breach of relations between London and Bucharest has occurred or is contemplated.

But it is obvious that an unfriendly sentiment toward Romania is growing in London and that relations are being strained nearly to the breaking point as a result of recent pro-Nazi developments in Romania to the disadvantage of Britain.

This sentiment was regarded as responsible for the general understanding in London that the British Government no longer feels itself bound by its guarantee to preserve the integrity of Romania and for the intimation to Bulgaria that London is "not unsympathetic" toward Bulgarian claims on Southern Dobruja.

Oil Goes To Nazis

An indication of British sentiment was a Bucharest dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph stating that 180,000 tons of Romanian oil will be exported to Germany this month—enough to keep 6,000 warplanes supplied with fuel for 30 days.

By August, the report said, it is expected that 200,000 tons of oil per month will be exported to Germany from Romania.

BERLIN, July 26—As a prelude to the "storm over England," Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today began a systematic reorganization of southeastern Europe, with particular attention to weaning Turkey away from her former collaboration with Great Britain.

Turko-German relations are moving rapidly toward complete rapprochement, informed quarters said. The trade agreement signed in Ankara yesterday, providing for exchange of goods totalling 21,000,000 Turkish pounds, "is symptomatic of the new political outlook between the Reich and Turkey," a spokesman said.

Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey and the Reich's leading "trouble-shooter" is now on his way from Ankara to Berchtesgaden to discuss the whole situation with Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. Official German quarters confidently expect that Turkey will soon renounce all her old ties with Britain.

"England," the spokesman declared, "is no longer able to mix in or disturb affairs on continental Europe."

In this connection, great importance was attached to negotiations under way at Salzburg between German and Romanian statesmen which were officially described as a "blitz" confab. The meaning was that problems affecting Romania and her neighbors, particularly Hungary, would be solved in a lightning manner.

Bulgarian delegates are due at Salzburg tomorrow for similar conversations, while a Slovakian mission will arrive tomorrow. Informed German quarters indicated no one should be surprised if complete settlement of all Balkan problems is announced over the week end. Both Bulgaria and Hungary have claims on Romania which the Reich apparently recognizes.

suffered under a 100-degree mark. Indiana gasped for breath yesterday and early today, eagerly waiting the relief promised for tonight. La Porte reported the highest temperature in the state, 105, with a great many others recording 100 or more. Drownings and heat prostrations cost ten lives.

On the Pacific Coast, temperatures were reported seasonable. But inland cities suffered. Sacramento, Calif., had a high of 96, Fresno 102 and Yuma, Ariz., 104.

The relief arrived suddenly in Chicago last night, after the mercury had climbed above 100 degrees for the second successive day—the fourth time in history this has occurred. At 5 p. m., the temperature was 101; at 8 p. m., it was still 97; but by 10 p. m. it had cooled to 73.

The cooling winds, which earlier had swept over the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, were accompanied by showers, local windstorms and electrical displays. Many trees were blown down, a barn was struck by lightning and several with a loss of $10,000, and burned boats were capsized.

Forecasts for cooler were issued for the states to which the cooling winds had not yet penetrated. These included Nebraska, where the mercury rocketed to 112 at Lincoln and 108 at Omaha yesterday, and Indiana, which felt 105-degree heat at Laporte yesterday.

The Ohio Valley appeared destined to be one of the last sections to gain succor from blazing heat, but cooler was forecast for Ohio tonight and for Kentucky, West Virginia, and southern Indiana tomorrow. Thunderstorms in each state were to follow in the wake of the heat.

Showers, thunderstorms and cooler likewise were forecast farther east, to arrive either today or tomorrow in such states as New York, Vermont, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Michigan, where a four-year high of 96 was equalled at Detroit yesterday, likewise was to feel more moderate temperatures sometime today. The state had one of the highest death tolls in the country, with 26 victims of drowning and 12 dead of prostration.

Rocky Mountain states obtained relief yesterday.

were still active over southeastern and southwestern England.

Of the German planes knocked out of the skies yesterday's gigantic engagements, at least 11 were bombers, according to an air ministry communiqué.

The swarms of German planes swooped down from tremendous altitudes to attack convoys along the coast, but it was claimed that the attacks failed to sink any ships as British anti-aircraft batteries and fighting planes drove off the raiders.

The most intense fighting occurred over the English Channel, where hundreds of planes wheeled and circled in the air in one of the great aerial combats ever staged. Both British Spitfires and Hurricanes (fast fighting planes) participated in the battles.

At the height of the battle, which excited observers watched from the southeast coast, the tangle of machines in the air looked like a huge horde of flies.

Roaring motors, rattling machine guns, anti-aircraft shell fire and bursting bombs which sent great columns of water spouting skyward as they fell combined to produce a spectacle that kept watchers on edge for hours.

Two "Disappear"

One eye-witness said he saw two planes "completely disappear" as the result of direct shell hits during the seemingly continuous whirl of "dog fights."

The combats lasted throughout the afternoon as waves of bombers fought a death struggle against waves of Hurricanes and Spitfires. British warships joined in, hurling up "flaming onions" and pompons in ceaseless blast of fire against the Nazi raiders.

For 10 minutes during the fight, King George VI took refuge in an air raid shelter on the south coast, where he was conducting a tour of naval establishments.

The monarch had completed an inspection of recruits when the air raid warning was sounded. While the men and boys marched off in orderly fashion, the king, accompanied by Admiral Sir William James, motored to a nearby shelter.

The marching men cheered as the monarch drove slowly past.

Later King George boarded, Dutch, Polish, Norwegian and French warships and later entrained for London.

When he emerged from the shelter after the Nazi raiders passed, the king was smoking a cigarette. He calmly asked what direction the raiders had taken and watched R. A. F. planes flying to intercept them. Then he said:

"I think we might go on now."

ROME, July 26 — "Effective" bombardment of Gibraltar by Italian war planes was officially announced today in the Italian war communiqué which said:

"One of our bomb squadrons after a night-long flight reached Gibraltar and bombed it effectively. All our planes returned to their bases."

"In North Africa our fighter planes shot down a British airplane the Gloucester type in the course of an enemy air raid on Derna which claimed only a few victims and caused insignificant damage."

"The damage done by our bombing of the oil depots at Haifa (Palestine) was considerable, as the enemy admits. The fire could be controlled only after many hours."

BERLIN, July 26 — The great single air raid success in the war, sinking of 11 British ships in a convoy of 23 in the English Channel, was claimed by the German high command today.

An official announcement also claimed that three other merchant vessels were damaged so severely that "their loss can be assumed," and that two British destroyers also were badly damaged.

The raid was carried out late yesterday afternoon and in the early evening over the channel.

Stuka dive bombers and other types of German planes participated in the raid, which sank ships totalling 43,000 tons, according to the high command. The damaged vessels, excluding the destroyers, totalling 12,000 tons, the statement added.

British naval units and warplanes were unsuccessful in attempts to drive off the German main quarters were jubilant of the raiders, officials declared. Ger-asserted tremendous blow delivered to the British ship convoy systems.

KING CAROL MAY SEEK HAVEN ON ENGLAND'S SOIL

that Carol has not put up much of a fight against Germany and has thus done little to retain the friendship of England.

Both the British and Romanians, however, are now strenuously denying that any open breach of relations between London and Bucharest has occurred or is contemplated.

But it is obvious that an unfriendly sentiment toward Romania is growing in London and that relations are being strained nearly to the breaking point as a result of recent pro-Nazi developments in Romania to the disadvantage of Britain.

This sentiment was regarded as responsible for the general understanding in London that the British Government no longer feels itself bound by its guarantee to preserve the integrity of Romania and for the intimation to Bulgaria that London is "not unsympathetic" toward Bulgarian claims on Southern Dobruja.

Oil Goes To Nazis

An indication of British sentiment was a Bucharest dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph stating that 180,000 tons of Romanian oil will be exported to Germany this month—enough to keep 6,000 warplanes supplied with fuel for 30 days.

By August, the report said, it is expected that 200,000 tons of oil per month will be exported to Germany from Romania.

BERLIN, July 26—As a prelude to the "storm over England", Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today began a systematic reorganization of southeastern Europe, with particular attention to weaning Turkey away from her former collaboration with Great Britain.

Turko-German relations are moving rapidly toward complete rapprochement, informed quarters said. The trade agreement signed in Ankara yesterday, providing for exchange of goods totalling 21,000,000 Turkish pounds, "is symptomatic of the new political outlook between the Reich and Turkey," a spokesman said.

Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey and the Reich's leading "trouble-shooter" is now on his way from Ankara to Berchtesgaden to discuss the whole situation with Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. Official German quarters confidently expect that Turkey will soon renounce all her old ties with Britain.

"England," the spokesman declared, "is no longer able to mix in or disturb affairs on continental Europe."

In this connection, great importance was attached to negotiations under way at Salzburg between German and Romanian statesmen which were officially described as a "blitz" confab. The meaning was that problems affecting Romania and her neighbors, particularly Hungary, would be solved in a lightning manner.

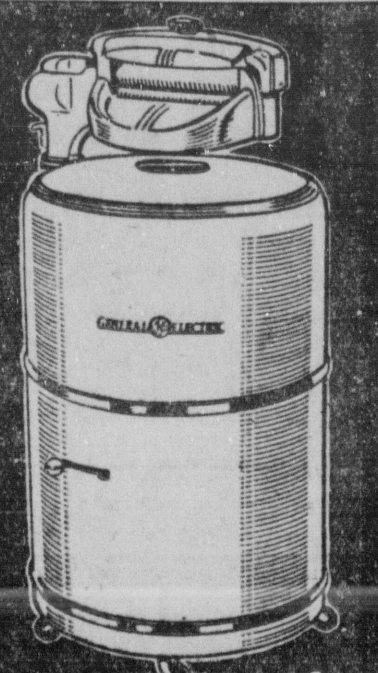

Bulgarian delegates are due at Salzburg tomorrow for similar conversations, while a Slovakian mission will arrive tomorrow. Informed German quarters indicated no one should be surprised if complete settlement of all Balkan problems is announced over the week end. Both Bulgaria and Hungary have claims on Romania which the Reich apparently recognizes.

CHRISTY UNDER ARREST IN HEIFER INVESTIGATION

Millard (Curly) Christy, 50, of Circleville, was committed to Ross County Jail Thursday pending investigation of the theft of a heifer from the John Ross farm in Hocking County.

Christy's arrest was made by Ross County Deputy C. J. Vincent after W. E. Clark, a Fairfield County farmer, reported to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff that he had purchased a heifer from Christy for $16, and that he had not learned until later that the animal had been stolen. Christy maintained that he had bought the heifer for $14 from two men who stopped him on a Ross County road six miles south of Adelphi July 17.

Clark told Sheriff Radcliff and

CLAYPOOL ACTS TO BRING U. S. PROJECT HERE

Congressman To Take Up Rail Facility Task In Washington

ENGINEERS LIKE DISTRICT

Solon Says Three Trunk Routes Ready To Put In New Lines

The question of suitable transportation facilities in case the War Department approves the Whisker-Kingston district in Pickaway County for a federal munitions project to cost $30,000,000 will be taken up just as soon as Congressman Harold K. Claypool of Chillicothe returns to Washington D. C. this weekend.

Claypool's statement resulted from the announcement from Washington that the "top site in southeastern Ohio for the proposed plant is in the Kingston area," but that "lack of adequate transportation facilities has caused the War Department to withhold definite approval of the site" at the present time.

In this connection, it was also reported through congressional channels that other proposed sites in the southeastern area have been rejected flatly because they are too hilly, or lacked water and other necessary facilities.

Congressman Claypool pointed out that the Kingston site, which has been indorsed by the Chambers of Commerce of Chillicothe, Circleville, Lancaster, and Logan, is within 10 miles of three trunk railroads, the N. & W., B. & O., and C. & O.

The congressman said he had been assured that the railroads stand ready to build tracks to serve the Federal plant if the Kingston site is approved. The site also affords water, power, many square miles of level land, and neighboring hill country that prove an additional valuable asset in connection with a project of this nature.

Concerning the railroads, the congressman stated that their proximity had been covered in a memorandum on this subject a few days ago to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and was brought up again in personal conversation between Representative Claypool and Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war.

There was speculation today on when the War Department might send a corps of engineers here for a formal survey of the site.

U. S. Airplane Engine Job

Fifty-seven cities are bidding furiously for the new $5,400,000 airplane engine research laboratory to be built by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

NACA officials won't reach a decision for several weeks, but you can mark it down as definite that a Midwestern city, probably in the Great Lakes region, will be chosen as the site. Chief factor being weighed by the NACA is vulnerability to air attack.

Other considerations are: (1) accessibility to engine manufacturers; (2) proximity to an industrial center where skilled labor and technical supplies are available; (3) adequate power and water supply.

At least five cities which want the airplane laboratory fulfill these specifications—South Bend, Chicago, Indianapolis, Detroit and Cleveland. Others being considered are Dayton, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Columbus.

Strongest point in favor of Indianapolis—considered the best bet by insiders, with South Bend second—is the fact that the big Allison liquid-cooled engine plant is located there. Army and Navy officials are keenly interested in the further development of liquid-cooled motors because of their higher speed and horsepower.

Dayton Still In Race

Dayton cannot be counted out, since the Army has an air experimental station there which could easily be expanded. Buffalo is closest to the big engine plants in Connecticut (Pratt-Whitney) and New Jersey (Wright). However, Buffalo also is the most vulnerable of the nine cities mentioned.

Most important phase of the research to be conducted at the laboratory is fuel conservation. About 60 percent of the fuel energy in military airplane motors now being made is wasted, according to federal aviation authorities. Another problem is wind resistance, particularly in open-cowl, air-cooled motors.

NACA researchers hope eventually to develop a flat, liquid-cooled motor that will fit in the wings of streamlined fighting planes. Chief advantage of this type, besides speed, is its constant temperature, which enable planes to function smoothly at the high altitudes necessary to repel bombing attacks.

A disadvantage, from a military standpoint, is the necessity of protecting the cooling system with bullet-proof armor, which isn't needed on air-cooled motors. For this reason, pending further research, most of the engines to be built for the Army and Navy will continue to be air-cooled.

YOUTH MURDERS GIRL WHO CALLED OFF 'DATE'

SCRANTON, Pa., July 26 — Breaking a "date" cost Mary Jane Rogan, 19, her life today. The girl was shot and killed as she sat in her home last night by Edo Moretti, 24, an unemployed miner who then killed himself.

Moretti walked into Mary Jane's home and greeted her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rogan in a friendly fashion. Then without another word he drew an automatic pistol and fired five bullets into the girl's body as she sat on a couch with a girl friend. He then killed himself with one shot. Miss Rogan had made a "date" earlier in the day with Moretti and then had broken it, sending Moretti a note telling him she couldn't see him.

CLAYPOOL ACTS TO BRING U. S. PROJECT HERE

Congressman To Take Up Rail Facility Task In Washington

ENGINEERS LIKE DISTRICT

Solon Says Three Trunk Routes Ready To Put In New Lines

The question of suitable transportation facilities in case the War Department approves the Whisker-Kingston district in Pickaway County for a federal munitions project to cost $30,000,000 will be taken up just as soon as Congressman Harold K. Claypool of Chillicothe returns to Washington D. C. this weekend.

Claypool's statement resulted from the announcement from Washington that the "top site in southeastern Ohio for the proposed plant is in the Kingston area," but that "lack of adequate transportation facilities has caused the War Department to withhold definite approval of the site" at the present time.

In this connection, it was also reported through congressional channels that other proposed sites in the southeastern area have been rejected flatly because they are too hilly, or lacked water and other necessary facilities.

Congressman Claypool pointed out that the Kingston site, which has been indorsed by the Chambers of Commerce of Chillicothe, Circleville, Lancaster, and Logan, is within 10 miles of three trunk railroads, the N. & W., B. & O., and C. & O.

The congressman said he had been assured that the railroads stand ready to build tracks to serve the Federal plant if the Kingston site is approved. The site also affords water, power, many square miles of level land, and neighboring hill country that prove an additional valuable asset in connection with a project of this nature.

Concerning the railroads, the congressman stated that their proximity had been covered in a memorandum on this subject a few days ago to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and was brought up again in personal conversation between Representative Claypool and Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war.

There was speculation today on when the War Department might send a corps of engineers here for a formal survey of the site.

U. S. Airplane Engine Job

Fifty-seven cities are bidding furiously for the new $4,400,000 airplane engine research laboratory to be built by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

NACA officials won't reach a decision for several weeks, but you can mark it down as definite that a Midwest region, probably in the Great Lakes city, will be chosen as the site. Chief factor being weighed by the NACA is vulnerability to air attack.

Other considerations are: (1) accessibility to engine manufacturers; (2) proximity to an industrial center where skilled labor and technical supplies are available; (3) adequate power and water supply.

At least five cities which want the airplane laboratory fulfill these specifications—South Bend, Chicago, Indianapolis, Detroit and Cleveland. Others being considered are Dayton, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Columbus.

Strongest point in favor of Indianapolis—considered the best bet by insiders, with South Bend second—is the fact that the big Allison liquid-cooled engine plant is

Arrives in U. S.

THE Grand Duchess Charlotte - Adelgunde, former ruler of the Duchy of Luxembourg, now a refugee from the Nazis, arrived Thursday in the United States with her family on the American cruiser Trenton.

located there. Army and Navy officials are keenly interested in the further development of liquid-cooled motors because of their higher speed and horsepower.

Dayton Still In Race

Dayton cannot be counted out, since the Army has an air experimental station there which could easily be expanded. Buffalo is closest to the big engine plants in Connecticut (Pratts-Whitney) and New Jersey (Wright). However, Buffalo also is the most vulnerable of the nine cities mentioned.

Most important phase of the research to be conducted at the laboratory is fuel conservation. About 60 percent of the fuel energy in military airplane motors now being made is wasted, according to federal aviation authorities. Another problem is wind resistance, particularly in open-cowl, air-cooled motors.

NACA researchers hope eventually to develop a flat, liquid-cooled motor that will fit in the wings of streamlined fighting planes. Chief advantage of this type, besides speed, is its constant temperature, which enable planes to function smoothly at the high altitudes necessary to repel bombing attacks.

A disadvantage, from a military standpoint, is the necessity of protecting the cooling system with bullet-proof armor, which isn't needed on air-cooled motors. For this reason, pending further research, most of the engines to be built for the Army and Navy will continue to be air-cooled.

YOUTH MURDERS GIRL WHO CALLED OFF 'DATE'

SCRANTON, Pa., July 26 — Breaking a "date" cost Mary Jane Rogan, 19, her life today. The girl was shot and killed as she sat in her home last night by Edo Moretti 24, an unemployed miner who then killed himself.

Moretti walked into Mary Jane's home and greeted her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rogan in a friendly fashion. Then without another word he drew an automatic pistol and fired five bullets into the girl's body as she sat on a couch with a girl friend. He then killed himself with one shot. Miss Rogan had made a "date" earlier in the day with Moretti and then had broken it, sending Moretti a note telling him she couldn't see him.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

GENTLEMEN: No single story in recent months has created so much interest in Circleville as has the announcement that the federal government is studying a Pickaway County site as a possible location for a new munitions plant to cost many millions of dollars. Everywhere Circleville and Pickaway County folk are discussing the possibility of Uncle Sam choosing a part of the Pickaway Plains for the gigantic factory, which rumor has it, would cost $30,000,000, cover 15 square miles and employ 5,000 persons. Whether any of these rumors is true is not known, but the subject has created much interest. I am pleased with the interest shown by the Chamber of Commerce. Your president attended an important meeting in Chillicothe at which time the subject was discussed, and he returned with much information about the undertaking. The entire matter, I understand, rests in the hands of the War Department's engineers. They survey the proposed site to determine whether it has all the facilities required for the undertaking. Then they either approve or reject the location. If the engineers report favorably it is probable that action will be taken immediately in Washington to get the project moving along. Circleville persons can hardly realize that a project like this is a possibility, but they certainly hope that it is. Munitions plants have "made" other cities in the nation, and such a project could do much for south central Ohio.

TO KIWANIS CLUB

MEN: Congratulations go to you for conducting the second annual health camp for 30 underprivileged Circleville and Pickaway County boys. The camp this year was even more successful than that of the last year. I wish that the club was financially able to take more boys to camp, but I am pleased that at least 30 receive the opportunity to enjoy the week. Your club does a splendid work for the boys of the community and I hope that the projects you sponsor to raise the camp fund receive hearty cooperation from all of Circleville's residents.

TO CONTAINER CORPORATION

INDUSTRY: Although no information was available concerning the operation of the Circleville plant, all of us are pleased with the recent announcement of the Container Corporation of America concerning its business for the first six months of 1946. The Corporation's various plants scattered throughout the nation showed an excellent increase in the volume of business during the period, an increase of more than $4,000,000 being noted in the report sent from the Chicago office of the company. It is safe to say that the Circleville plant contributed its share to this increase, because business has been excellent, the factory going along at top speed. Circleville is proud of the Container Corporation plant, just as it is proud of its other industries, and any favorable note concerning its operation is welcome to our community. This industry means bread and butter for many Circleville families, and business for Circleville's stores. The confidence the Corporation has in Circleville is shown, also, by the number of improvements completed there in the last couple of years. Here's hoping that the Corporation's report for the last six months of the year is as favorable as for the first half.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BUSINESSMEN

FRIENDS: You are to be commended for signing the Chamber of Commerce's agreement to close your places of business on Wednesday afternoons through the hottest months of the summer. I understand that 57 business houses closed their doors this week at noon on Wednesday, this number being two more than the 55 who had signed the pledge. It is a shame that a few stores cannot see their way clear to join in this movement which is sponsored by Circleville's leading stores and which should include all places of business no matter how large or how small. Many other Ohio cities have carried out this policy for numerous years. It would be very pleasing to learn prior to next Wednesday that the few stores that have not joined in the city-wide movement had agreed to participate in the undertaking.

TO PUMPKIN SHOW SOCIETY

DIRECTORS: Circleville's Pumpkin Show is just three months away, and it is about time for all of you to start thinking in terms of the big festival that annually attracts thousands into Circleville. There is still much to be done, and on your shoulders will rest the job of getting all arrangements made for the October event. The most important phase of the celebration at this time is the soliciting campaign. Persons in charge of gathering pledges for the conduct of the show should swing into action right now to learn just how much money they can count on in planning their celebration. The campaign set up at the last meeting of the society should bring results. Many other tasks remain to be handled, and I am glad to see that the directors of the agricultural organization have been called together the first week in August to "get the ball rolling". Our Pumpkin Show is an outstanding undertaking, and no one can permit it to fail. It closes the annual County Fair season in Ohio. Let's all get together to make the concluding event in the fair schedule the greatest one of them all.

TO FARM LEADERS

RURAL FOLK: Announcement was made during the last week that Circleville will be the gathering place August 2 for many of the state's outstanding farm leaders. A program of much interest will be offered with many of the leaders speaking and discussing various phases of Ohio farming that should be of interest to all of you. Memorial Hall will be the scene of the gathering, one of 22 such meetings being conducted in Ohio during the month. Four counties will send representatives to Circleville to participate in the program and to hear the speeches planned by the various farm leaders. All who can possibly do so should be in the Hall during the meeting. Much information of value to all of you will be provided.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IT WILL BE the United States' own fault if we allow ourselves to be propagandized into the notion that our Latin neighbor republics to our southwest are otherwise than solidly alongside Uncle Sam in his western hemispherical policy in opposition to the spread of Nazism, Fascism, Communism or any other old world "ism" from Europe to the Americas, as a by-product of the pending war.

Oh, yes, doubtless there are a few little totalitarian groups in countries between the Rio Grande and Cape Horn. According to Congressman Martin Dies, we have several such organizations here in the United States. And Dies says they might be very troublesome in an emergency, but even he doesn't intimate that they ever will dominate our whole government.

Just so in Latin America. The southern totalitarian blocs evidently are an annoyance to them, but not dangerous.

A curious feature of the situation is that these organizations, such as they are, get a large part of their nourishment from right here in the United States. The Yankee supposition is that it's fed to them, mainly by wireless, from Berlin and Rome.

HOW SYSTEM WORKS

As a matter of fact, taking operations in Mexico as an example, the system works more like this:

In Mexico City is a Communist publication known as El Popular, which likes to print anti-Yankee stuff. Also in the Mexican capital is a German daily (issued in Spanish) called the Diario Aleman.

These two papers maintain in the United States a few correspondents each, whose mission is to send to their editors all the American news they can scare up, of a nature calculated to be offensive to Latin-American readers.

Illustratively, both periodicals have done their utmost to make it appear that Uncle Sam's present defense program is essentially anti-Latin-American in character. There's been considerable Yankee regular army activity just north of the Rio Grande of late. There's nothing to imply that it's the least bit hostile to Mexico, but the Diario Aleman insists that it is.

LINDBERGH STATEMENT

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in his last broadcast, will be recalled as having warned that it is imperative for the United States to strengthen our western hemisphere defense "in co-operation with Latin America" — but with the suggestion that we "must have bases where we need them, regardless of who owns the territory involved."

This promptly was played up by El Popular and the Diario Aleman as forecasting landings of American marines on Latin soil, with no questions asked for the Latins themselves — as in the old days when we were distrusted and feared as the "colossus of the north," by our southern neighbors.

The most important thing to do after an animal has bitten or otherwise infected a human being is to see that the animal's carcass is taken to a responsible veterinarian or health department pathologist. It is by no means best to kill the animal, but put it under observation for ten days or two weeks. If typical symptoms develop, treatment of humans who were exposed need not be further delayed. Unless the animal is prepared and examined there is no basis whatever for arriving at a judgment of whether preventive inoculation should be done or not.

For actual bites or scratches made by the teeth or claws, treatment is always advisable. In the case of bites above the shoulders or multiple lacerations treatment should be begun immediately and

Judgment Difficult

Treatment is not advised following contamination of old cuts, sores or abrasions; "pinches" in which the skin is broken but the clothing neither torn nor penetrated; handling, eating with, sleeping with or kissing any animal which is living fourteen days from the time of such contact; contact from fleas from rabid animals.

The cases where judgment is difficult are nervous people who have an exaggerated dread of rabies and who have done more than handle the rope of the animal which afterwards went rabid. For such cases it is best to acquiesce and give the treatment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

IT WAS Caroline who had telephoned to Linda just as she was ready to leave the office for a late sandwich.

"Linda? That actress-wench has been calling you. She tried to change her name, but I caught the fiber of her voice. She seems to want to see you. Before I caught on I told her you were working late. I'm calling to warn you."

"She won't annoy me here. Anyway, she's a guest artist on a radio program. Tune in, Caroline, honey, and you'll catch her. She's doing a radio skit. She mentioned it on the boat."

"The boat—by the way, Terry left his scribbled card downstairs tonight. I found it when I came in. It's funny. He hasn't been making beaten paths to my front door."

Caroline's voice, for all its hushed lightness, was hurt. Linda, remembering the manner in which the young publicity agent had smiled at the actress, felt a sudden indignation.

"Caroline, she's ancient and old and tired. Terry's just being a good publicity man." She knew her words weren't convincing.

"You can't tell me anything!" The voice hardened. "Don't work too late."

Linda called to the assistant, asking her to join her, but the girl refused. "May I work at your desk while you're gone?" she asked. "It's flat and so much wider. I'm trying to paste up the dummy."

"Of course, and I'll turn on the radio. Ever hear Mina Nevins?"

"Of course! She's glorious. Is she on in anything tonight?" There was eagerness in the girl's plain face.

Dialing for the station where Mina was appearing, Linda tried to tell herself that perhaps Mina could be forgiven for much because she could bring beauty and ecstasy to narrow, struggling lives. Maybe, viewed from some remote promontory, life was orderly and circumspect. Maybe only those who were too close to a pattern felt vague and confused.

She found the program which she sought and waited until the first act of the dramatic skit came on. Ah, there was Mina, but her glorious voice was tired and strained tonight. Some of the vitality was lacking.

The other girl sensed it, too, for her eyes showed disappointment. The announcer came on the air: "You have been listening to Miss Mina Nevins, noted actress, in the first of a series of dramatic plays. Following our 15-minute musical program Miss Nevins will again come on the air in the second half of the recital."

Linda looked back at the girl from the door. Clarabell Ackerman had put on a green eye-shade to protect her eyes from the desk lamp. She had switched off the other lamps so the room was in shadow beyond the quiet pool of light where she sat.

"I'll be back soon," Linda called. It would be dreadful to be so alone, not to have Ronnie waiting, not to have the stars and the moon and love and laughter for your own, but to thrill forever to a strange voice across a shining network.

Poor Clarabell! A little later she was to remember the sympathy that almost made her wait and not eat until the evening's work was over.

For a long time after she had delivered her message to Linda, Caroline sat quietly on the sofa, waiting, waiting—

If Terry had come that long distance downtown from the radio offices on the chance that he might find her in, surely he would call later. A woman had no pride, no independence to let a man rove and then be a harbor to receive him, she knew. But sometimes love could not be confined. And sometimes men went questing blindly, and were grateful to find that candles still burned for them against their late return.

But the clock struck nine and nine-thirty and ten and Terry had not called. Suddenly she knew that he would not. Whatever he had wanted, he did not need her now.

She must not sit here and weep. She must not pine. She must be gay, gay, gay. She must laugh and pretend that nothing, nothing ever was important.

An artist for whom she had been posing had asked her to go to dinner that night and she had refused. He had said that he would be working late in his studio if she should change her mind.

Well, she had changed it. She leaped through the Manhattan directory, found the number and dialed.

Her voice was husky and low and sweet when she spoke. There was none of the fright or hurt that was in her heart.

"Bertram? I changed my mind. If you still think it's a night to go partying, I'm in the mood."

The man was a young artist whose work was just winning recognition. He was from New England, and New York still was a fascinating city to him. To date his model was an adventure. He had used Caroline in four illustrations and had grown to like her, but not until this day had he dared to ask her to go to dinner.

"We'll paint the town purple and dot it with silver polka dots," he agreed. "How about taking a cab over here and picking me up? I'll be waiting. Have the driver call me and keep the meter running."

"How about picking me up?" Yes, that was the way it was done. Men thought nothing about asking girls to come for them, nothing at all, Caroline told herself, as she slipped into a dress of midnight blue which was spangled with silver stars.

She had bought this dress to go dancing with Terry, but he had not seen it. Small good clothes were hanging in a closet. She would wear the dress, and when it was worn out she would get another and another—a red one and a green one and an orchid one filled with frilly white moons.

The face above the dark frock was wistful and white when she was ready. She outlined her lips in brighter crimson. Then with a last look at the quiet telephone, she ran down the stairs.

Her artist was waiting. He was considerate and merry and kind. He liked her new dress and he had a lot to say about his work. She listened quietly. A girl always could listen. She asked a few intelligent questions.

They went on to place after place. Caroline never had seen the dancing at the Savoy in Harlem, so they watched it for awhile. A new night spot had been opened by a stage personage famous at the turn of the century, so they dropped in there. Twenty-One, the Stork club, the Iridium room, the Versailles.

They became a merry-go-round through which Caroline moved in her dark and shining dress. She knew only that she didn't want to go home. But after a long time she was so tired she no longer cared.

The artist did not talk much in the cab. He had found some ideas for illustrations for a society novel and he was busy tabulating them mentally.

He asked the cab driver to pause at a news stand and bought some morning papers. In the dim light of the cab he opened a tabloid.

Caroline gave a small gasp. There was Linda's picture, the one with her face looking high at stars or birds flying, and the halo hat on her head. So Linda's engagement was a surety now.

Somewhere a clock was striking three. Life went on, went fast or slow, all depending on the one who walked the path with you.

She looked at the head on the story. Then she gave a small cry. This wasn't at all what she expected to see.

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

GENTLEMEN: No single story in recent months has created so much interest in Circleville as has the announcement that the federal government is studying a Pickaway County site as a possible location for a new munitions plant to cost many millions of dollars. Everywhere Circleville and Pickaway County folk are discussing the possibility of Uncle Sam choosing a part of the Pickaway Plains for the gigantic factory, which rumor has it, would cost $30,000,000, cover 15 square miles and employ 5,000 persons. Whether any of these rumors is true is not known, but the subject has created much interest. I am pleased with the interest shown by the Chamber of Commerce. Your president attended an important meeting in Chillicothe at which time the subject was discussed, and he returned with much information about the undertaking. The entire matter, I understand, rests in the hands of the War Department's engineers. They survey the proposed site to determine whether it has all the facilities required for the undertaking. Then they either approve or reject the location. If the engineers report favorably it is probable that action will be taken immediately in Washington to get the project moving along. Circleville persons can hardly realize that a project like this is a possibility, but they certainly hope that it is. Munitions plants have "made" other cities in the nation, and such a project could do much for south central Ohio.

MEN: Congratulations go to you for conducting the second annual health camp for 30 underprivileged Circleville and Pickaway County boys. The camp this year was even more successful than that of the last year. I wish that the club was financially able to take more boys to camp, but I am pleased that at least 30 receive the opportunity to enjoy the week. Your club does a splendid work for the boys of the community and I hope that the projects you sponsor to raise the camp fund receive hearty cooperation from all of Circleville's residents.

TO CONTAINER CORPORATION

INDUSTRY: Although no information was available concerning the operation of the Circleville plant, all of us are pleased with the recent announcement of the Container Corporation of America concerning its business for the first six months of 1946. The Corporation's various plants scattered throughout the nation showed an excellent increase in the volume of business during the period, an increase of more than $4,000,000 being noted in the report sent from the Chicago office of the company. It is safe to say that the Circleville plant contributed its share to this increase, because business has been excellent, the factory going along at top speed. Circleville is proud of the Container Corporation plant, just as it is proud of its other industries, and any favorable note concerning its operation is welcome to our community. This industry means bread and butter for many Circleville families, and business for Circleville's stores. The confidence the Corporation has in Circleville is shown, also, by the number of improvements completed there in the last couple of years. Here's hoping that the Corporation's report for the last six months of the year is as favorable as for the first half.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BUSINESSMEN

FRIENDS: You are to be commended for signing the Chamber of Commerce's agreement to close your places of business on Wednesday afternoons through the hottest months of the summer. I understand that 57 business houses closed their doors this week at noon on Wednesday, this number being two more than the 55 who had signed the pledge. It is a shame that a few stores cannot see their way clear to join in this movement which is sponsored by Circleville's leading stores and which should include all places of business no matter how large or how small. Many other Ohio cities have carried out this policy for numerous years. It would be very pleasing to learn prior to next Wednesday that the few stores that have not joined in the city-wide movement had agreed to participate in the undertaking.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

IT WAS Caroline who had telephoned to Linda just as she was ready to leave the office for a late sandwich.

"Linda? That actress-wench has been calling you. She tried to change her name, but I caught the fiber of her voice. She seems to want to see you. Before I caught on I told her you were working late. I'm calling to warn you."

"She won't annoy me here. Anyway, she's a guest artist on a radio program. Tune in, Caroline, honey, and you'll catch 'er. She's doing a radio skit. She mentioned it on the boat."

"The boat—by the way, Terry left his scribbled card downstairs tonight. I found it when I came in. It's funny. He hasn't been making beaten paths to my front door."

Caroline's voice, for all its hushed lightness, was hurt. Linda, remembering the manner in which the young publicity agent had smiled at the actress, felt a sudden indignation.

"Caroline, she's ancient and old and tired. Terry's just being a good publicity man." She knew her words weren't convincing.

"You can't tell me anything!" The voice hardened. "Don't work too late."

Linda called to the assistant, asking her to join her, but the girl refused. "May I work at your desk while you're gone?" she asked. "It's flat and so much wider. I'm trying to paste up the dummy."

"Of course, and I'll turn on the radio. Ever hear Mina Nevins?"

"Of course! She's glorious. Is she on in anything tonight?" There was eagerness in the girl's plain face.

Dialing for the station where Mina was appearing, Linda tried to tell herself that perhaps Mina could be forgiven for much because she could bring beauty and ecstasy to narrow, struggling lives. Maybe, viewed from some remote promontory, life was orderly and circumspect. Maybe only those who were too close to a pattern felt vague and confused.

She found the program which she sought and waited until the first act of the dramatic skit came on. Ah, there was Mina, but her glorious voice was tired and strained tonight. Some of the vitality was lacking.

The other girl sensed it, too, for her eyes showed disappointment. The announcer came on the air: "You have been listening to Miss Mina Nevins, noted actress. In the first of a series of dramatic plays. Following our 15-minute musical program Miss Nevins will again come on the air in the second half of the recital."

Linda looked back at the girl from the door. Clarabell Ackerman had put on a green eye-shade to protect her eyes from the desk lamp. She had switched off the other lamps so the room was in shadow beyond the quiet pool of light where she sat.

"I'll be back soon," Linda called. It would be dreadful to be so alone, not to have Ronnie waiting, not to have the stars and the moon and love and laughter for your own, but to thrill forever to a strange voice across a shining network.

Poor Clarabell! A little later she was to remember the sympathy that almost made her wait and not eat until the evening's work was over.

For a long time after she had delivered her message to Linda, Caroline sat quietly on the soft divan, waiting, waiting—

If Terry had come that long distance downtown from the radio offices on the chance that he might find her in, surely he would call later. A woman had no pride, no independence to let a man rove and then be a harbor to receive him, she knew. But sometimes love could not be confined. And sometimes men went questing blindly, and were grateful to find that candles had burned for them against their late return.

But the clock struck nine and nine-thirty and ten and Terry had not called. Suddenly she knew that he would not. Whatever he had wanted, he did not need her now.

She must not sit here and weep. She must not pine. She must be gay, gay, gay. She must laugh and pretend that nothing, nothing ever was important.

An artist for whom she had been posing had asked her to go to dinner that night and she had refused. He had said that he would be working late in his studio if she should change her mind.

Well, she had changed it. She leaped through the Manhattan directory, found the number and dialed.

Her voice was husky and low and sweet when she spoke. There was none of the fright or hurt that was in her heart.

"Bertram? I changed my mind. If you still think it's a night to go on. Ah, there was Mina, but her glorious voice was tired and strained tonight. Some of the vitality was lacking."

The man was a young artist whose work was just winning recognition. He was from New England, and New York still was a fascinating city to him. To date his model was an adventure. He had used Caroline in four illustrations and had grown to like her, but not until this day had he dared to ask her to go to dinner.

"We'll paint the town purple and dot it with silver polka dots," he agreed. "How about taking a cab over here and picking me up? I'll be waiting. Have the driver call me and keep the meter running."

"How about picking me up?" Yes, that was the way it was done. Men thought nothing about asking girls to come for them, nothing at all, Caroline told herself, as she slipped into a dress of midnight blue which was spangled with silver stars.

She had bought this dress to go dancing with Terry, but he had not seen it. Small good clothes were hanging in a closet. She would wear the dress, and when it was worn out she would get another and another—a red one and a green one and an orchid one filled with frilly white moons.

The face above the dark frock was wistful and white when she was ready. She outlined her lips in brighter crimson. Then with a last look at the quiet telephone, she ran down the stairs.

Her artist was waiting. He was considerate and merry and kind. He liked her new dress and he had a lot to say about his work. She listened quietly. A girl always could listen. She asked a few intelligent questions.

They went on to place after place. Caroline never had seen the dancing at the Savoy up in Harlem, so they watched it for awhile. A new night spot had been opened by a stage personage famous at the turn of the century, so they dropped in there. Twenty-One, the Stork Club, the Iridium room, the Versailles.

They became a merry-go-round through which Caroline moved in her dark and shining dress. She knew only that she didn't want to go home. But after a long time she was so tired she no longer cared.

The artist did not talk much in the cab. He had found some ideas for illustrations for a society novel and he was busy tabulating them mentally.

He asked the cab driver to pause at a news stand and bought some morning papers. In the dim light of the cab he opened a tabloid.

Caroline gave a small gasp. There was Linda's picture, the one with her face looking high at stars or birds flying, and the halo hat on her head. So Linda's engagement was a surety now.

Somewhere a clock was striking three. Life went on, went fast or slow, all depending on the one who walked the path with you.

She looked at the head on the story. Then she gave a small cry. This wasn't at all what she expected to see.

DEMILO ANSWERS

Every listener who writes to Producer Cecil E. DeMille about the Radio Theatre eventually gets an answer, although it may take almost a year in some cases. The letters are segregated by DeMille's secretaries, and those with a time element involved are answered first. Those without a time element are put in another basket to be answered at some date in the future. Aboard his schooner yacht The Seaward, off Santa Catalina Island, DeMille is now answering several hundred letters, some of them a few months old. He dictates the replies into a cylinder machine. The cylinders are sent ashore every night to his office, and transcribed there. Another basket of letters is at his Paradise Ranch. He hopes to answer his entire batch of letters before the Radio Theatre returns to the air September 9.

LEVANT NERVOUS

The most nervous of all guests ever to visit the Music Hall is Oscar Levant. In talking to Crosby about his shaky hands, Levant couldn't account for the fact. He has been on the radio more than a year and he often appears before large audiences at concerts, but his fear of microphone remains as strong as ever. Last week, Levant, who had the closing spot, stayed in his dressing room until time for him to go on.

RADIO BRIEFS

Harry McNaughton, mentioned recently with a number of stooges for a new show, denies the tie-up, explaining that he's on the verge of completing a deal which will star him on his own comedy series.

Frankie Masters and his orchestra heard daily over NBC from the Hotel Taft, were selected as the first to use the new Okeh recording studios in New York.

DeMille ANSWERS

Every listener who writes to Producer Cecil B. DeMille about the Radio Theatre eventually gets an answer, although it may take almost a year in some cases. The letters are segregated by DeMille's secretaries, and those with a time element involved are answered first. Those without a time element are put in another basket to be answered at some date in the future. Aboard his schooner yacht The Seaward, off Santa Catalina Island, DeMille is now answering several hundred letters, some of them a few months old. He dictates the replies into a cylinder machine. The cylinders are sent ashore every night to his office, and transcribed there. Another basket of letters is at his Paradise Ranch. He hopes to answer his entire batch of letters before the Radio Theatre returns to the air September 9.

LEVANT NERVOUS

The most nervous of all guests ever to visit the Music Hall is Oscar Levant. In talking to Crosby about his shaky hands, Levant couldn't account for the fact. He has been on the radio more than a year and he often appears before large audiences at concerts, but his fear of microphone remains as strong as ever. Last week, Levant, who had the closing spot, stayed in his dressing room until time for him to go on.

RADIO BRIEFS

BIG PAUL TAKES MOUND AS REDS MEET PHILLIES

McKechnie Warns Team To Forget Lead And Play Baseball.

WHITE SOX IN 'STREAK

Dykes' Club Nearing Third; Indians Lose 7-6 To Mack's Crew

PHILADELPHIA, July 26 — Paul Derringer, workhorse of the Cincinnati Reds, was to take the mound tonight against Philadelphia as the Redlegs seek to protect an eight-game margin in the National League pennant race.

The Reds enjoyed a day of rest yesterday.

Despite the 8-game lead, Manager Bill McKechnie warned the racing Reds not to become "cocksure." He recalled the 12-game margin held on August 1 last year, and the desperate battle that ensued in September when the St. Louis Cardinals suddenly got hot.

NEW YORK, July 26 — With ball players fainting in the dugouts these sweltering days, the grumbling among them over their sad lot is something terrific.

It does seem a shame that these poor slaves getting only from $10,000 to $30,000 a season for playing two hours in the sun should suffer so. Still, there are many swinging a pick and shovel eight hours a day in the same sun for something less than $30,000 a lifetime, with no thought of complaint and nobody to listen even if they should complain.

However, there are no complaints emanating from the sweet-scented purlieu of Chicago's south side where that roistering, cigar-chewing boss trader, Jimmy Dykes, and his White Sox hang out.

Little Jimmy is setting pretty these days and the heat wave can continue unabated so long as his White Hosed minions continue to win.

While everybody has been discussing the pennant chances of the Tigers, Indians, Red Sox and Yanks, nobody has given a tumble to Jimmy's ball club.

The White Sox have now won seven straight games and today are only two games out of third place. If they can knock off the Yanks in the series starting today they will not only move into the first division but will have a large strident voice in deciding where the pennant flag shall fly.

When you look over the White Sox roster you may say that the club doesn't belong in such elite company, but the records tell a different story.

The Red Sox made three homers off Jack Knott yesterday, but he rang up No. 7 for the White Sox, 6-4. Joe Kuhel's homer providing the winning margin.

The Tigers increased their lead by topping the Senators, 5 to 2, while the Athletics were downing the Indians, 7 to 6. And the Yanks ended a five game losing streak by pounding a quintet of Brownie throwers for 16 hits and a 13-8 decision.

The idling Dodgers and Reds each picked up half a game on the Giants who bowed before the Pirates 2 to 1 when young Glen Stewart, subbing for Billy Jurgens at short, mugged up a double play ball, the Pirates scoring the winning run without a hit. This was a tough one for Hal Schumacher to lose as he gave the Bucs only six hits while the Giants made nine off Truett Sewell, but who was effective with men on base.

With a little help from old man Charley Root, Bill Lee managed to pitch the Cubs to an 8-4 decision over the Bees. Rain forced the postponement of the night scheduled between St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Kiwanians Win 11 to 7 Game From Lancaster

Circleville Kiwanians are just one softball game away from a free chicken dinner in their series with the Lancaster Club's team after winning 11-7 in Thursday evening's contest at Lancaster. The local Kiwanians have won two games against one victory for the Lancaster team. The fourth game will be played on the northend lot next Thursday evening, and the local team can end the series by winning this contest. The dinner will go to the club winning three out of a five game series.

The Thursday game, played in extreme heat, was featured by some good and some bad softball. Bill Hegele, Kiwanis Club pitcher, and Ralph Pettit, his battery mate, starred for Circleville with Don Walker in short field and Tom Renick on second base weighing in with some neat plays. Walker and Larry Hulise, first baseman, each collected three hits for the local outfit.

Lancaster's star was Blaine, leftfielder.

In the Circleville lineup were Pettit, c; Hegele, p; Hulise, 1b; Renick, 2b; Miller, ss; Baker, 3b; Walker, sf; Geib, lf; McClain, cf; and Bower and Henry, rf.

Hegele had his best inning in the ninth as darkness started to fall. He forced the first batter to ground to him for an easy out at first. The next one sent up an infield popper that Hegele took, and he fanned the third one, Pettit hanging on to a foul tip for the third strike.

COLUMBUS, July 26—Minneapolis was a half-game closer to the American Association leaders today as the Millers recorded a double victory over Toledo. The second-placers won by scores of 6 to 1 and 5 to 4, the nightcap being held to six innings because of a curfew. Meanwhile, Kansas City defeated Louisville, 4 to 1, at Kansas City. The Blues now have a four and one-half game lead over the Millers.

Columbus, currently in third place, split a double bill with St. Paul, the Reds Birds taking the opener, 9 to 1, but dropping the nightcap, 4 to 1.

Indianapolis at Milwaukee was rained out.

McKechnie Warns Team To Forget Lead-And Play Baseball.

WHITE SOX IN STREAK

Dykes' Club Nearing Third; Indians Lose 7-6 To Mack's Crew

PHILADELPHIA, July 26 — Paul Derringer, workhorse of the Cincinnati Reds, was to take the mound tonight against Philadelphia as the Redlegs seek to protect an eight-game margin in the National League pennant race.

The Reds enjoyed a day of rest yesterday.

Despite the 8-game lead, Manager Bill McKechnie warned the racing Reds not to become "cocksure." He recalled the 12-game margin held on August 1 last year and the desperate battle that ensued in September when the St. Louis Cardinals suddenly got hot.

NEW YORK, July 26 — With ball players fainting in the dugouts these sweltering days the grumbling among them over their sad lot is something terrific.

It does seem a shame that these poor slaves getting only from $10,000 to $30,000 a season for playing two hours in the sun should suffer so. Still, there are many swinging a pick and shovel eight hours a day in the same sun for something less than $30,000 a lifetime, with no thought of complaint and nobody to listen even if they should complain.

However, there are no complaints emanating from the sweet-scented purlieus of Chicago's south side where that roistering, cigar-chewing boss trader, Jimmy Dykes and his White Sox hang out.

Little Jimmy is setting pretty these days and the heat wave can continue unabated so long as his White Hosed minions continue to win.

While everybody has been discussing the pennant chances of the Tigers, Indians, Red Sox and Yanks, nobody has given a tumble to Jimmy's ball club.

Yank Series Opens
The White Sox have now won seven straight games and today are only two games out of third place. If they can knock off the Yanks in the series starting today they will not only move into the first division but will have a large strident voice in deciding where the pennant flag shall fly.

When you look over the White Sox roster you may say that the club doesn't belong in such elite company, but the records tell a different story.

The Red Sox made three homers off Jack Knott yesterday, but he rang up No. 7 for the White Sox, 6-4. Joe Kuhel's homer providing the winning margin.

The Tigers increased their lead by topping the Senators, 5 to 2, while the Athletics were downing the Indians, 7 to 6. And the Yanks ended a five game losing streak by pouncing a quintet of Brownie throwers for 16 hits and a 13-8 decision.

The idling Dodgers and Reds each picked up half a game on the Giants who bowed before the Pirates 2 to 1 when young Glen Stewart, subbing for Billy Jurges at short, muffed up a double play ball, the Pirates scoring the winning run without a hit. This was a tough one for Hal Schumacher to lose as he gave the Bucs only six hits while the Giants made nine off Truett Sewell, but who was effective with men on base.

With a little help from old man Charley Root, Bill Lee managed to pitch the Cubs to an 8-4 decision over the Reds. Rain forced the postponement of the night scheduled between St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Circleville Kiwanians are just one softball game away from a free chicken dinner in their series with the Lancaster Club's team after winning 11-7 in Thursday evening's contest at Lancaster. The local Kiwanians have won two games against one victory for the Lancaster team. The fourth game will be played on the north end lot next Thursday evening, and the local team can end the series by winning this game series.

The Thursday game, played in extreme heat, was featured by some good and some bad softball. Bill Hegele, Kiwanis Club pitcher, and Ralph Pettit, his battery

MILLERS CUT IN LEAD GAINED BY KASEY OUTFIT

COLUMBUS, July 26—Minneapolis was a half-game closer to the American Association leaders today as the Millers recorded a double victory over Toledo.

The second-placers won by scores of 6 to 1 and 5 to 4, the nightcap being held to six innings because of a curfew. Meanwhile, Kansas City defeated Louisville, 4 to 1, at Kansas City. The Blues now have a four and one-half game lead over the Millers.

Columbus, currently in third place, split a double bill with St. Paul, the Reds Birds taking the opener, 9 to 1, but dropping the nightcap, 4 to 1.

Indianapolis at Milwaukee was rained out.

PLANS OUTLINED FOR PLAYGROUND'S USE

FOOTBALL FIELD TO BE REMOVED TO PARK GROUND

City Board Meets To Talk Over Development Of Major Project

EDUCATORS TO ASSIST

Tennis To Be Played; Much Equipment To Be Placed For Younger Folk

Hopes for a fully equipped playground for Circleville, complete with a lighted athletic field, ball diamonds and tennis courts, moved a step nearer reality Thursday night when the City Park Board met on the north-end recreation grounds and mapped out preliminary plans for Circleville's greatest playground project.

A strip of land, containing 4 1/2 acres, will be deeded to the Circleville school board for a new athletic field. In exchange for the land, the school board will give to the city the present athletic field, to be used for playground purposes by children in Circleville's south side area. Frank A. Lynch, chairman of the park board, stated that the trade would provide adequate space for all children, since it would make available a playground in both the north and south sections of the city.

Coach R. M. Black and Lawrence Goeller, chairman of the board of education, who met with the board, stated they were extremely pleased with the transaction.

The new athletic field will be 300 feet wide and 587 feet long, running north and south along the east end of the present 13 1/2 acre plot. The field will be inclosed with a fence, built and paid for by the school board. Around the field will be a 24 foot track, six lanes, each four feet wide.

Tennis Courts Available

Eight standard tennis courts, running north and south along the south end of the athletic field, will be built by the school board. Although the space for the courts is contained in the 4 1/2 acre grant to the board, the courts will be made available to the public, Chairman Lynch said.

A driveway 22 feet wide will be built along the south side of the grounds, with adequate parking space provided along the east end, the board members pointed out.

Board members stated that if their plans continue uninterrupted, the athletic field will be graded and grass seed planted yet this summer. The lights and bleachers at the present athletic field will be moved to the new location after the football season closes this fall.

GUARDS MAKING ARRANGEMENTS FOR OPERATIONS

First Ohio National Guard troops to arrive in the Second Army Maneuver area in the northern Wisconsin woods will be a detail of three officers and 20 enlisted men, commanded by Maj. Donald E. Spray of Columbus.

This group will locate three railheads for the Ohio National Guard August 9 and will prepare for supplying and housing of the 11,500 Ohio troops and 600 horses. Units of the main body will begin arriving in the area August 12. An advance detail of 450 officers and men will arrive August 10. Period of the extensive maneuver which will concentrate more than 65,000 National Guard and regular army troops and 7,500 motor vehicles in a 1,000 mile square area is August 11-31.

Major Spray's detail will establish railheads at Warrens, Weycamp for the Ohio troops. Equipment stored at Ft. Knox, Ky., and at Camp Perry, normal training grounds for Ohio's guardsmen, will be obtained by this detail and shipped to the maneuver area in 21 railway box cars. Included will be canvas tents, canvas and steel cots and mosquito bars.

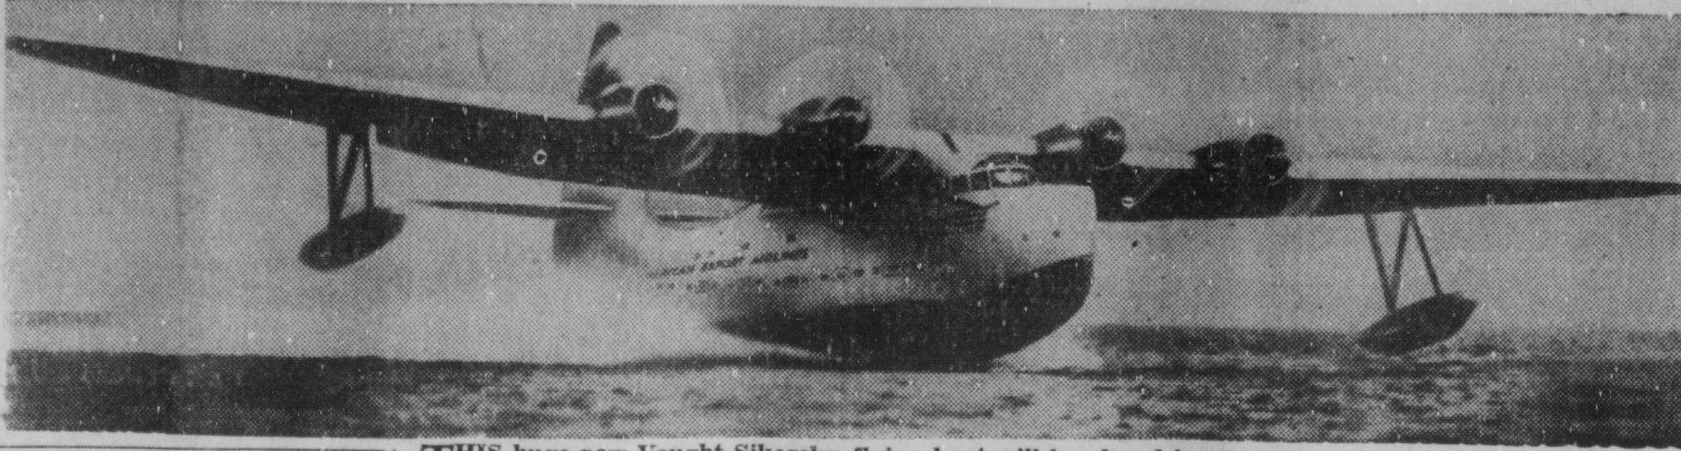

Officers of Major Spray's detail are Maj. Victor H. Goette, Camp Perry, and Capt. Marion S. Decker and William E. Keyes, both of Columbus.

Plans for the remainder of the grounds are still indefinite, and will be until the land has been carefully surveyed, Chairman Lynch said, but he stated that the city engineer had already taken a few primary readings on the grounds. Ball diamonds and playground equipment, including swings and slides will occupy a part of the space, he said, and a number of trees will be planted along the Norfolk and Western railroad tracks.

New Approach Possible

Harry Bartholomew, employee of the Norfolk and Western railroad, and a member of the park board, announced that the board had secured from the Norfolk and Western railway an easement making available a six foot suspended bridge across Hargus Creek as an approach to the city grounds.

New Transatlantic Planes May Become Bombers

THIS huge new Vought-Sikorsky flying boat will be placed in non-stop trans-Atlantic service next year by the American Export Airlines. Three of the planes are under construction. They are the commercial version of the navy's latest flying dreadnaughts and can readily be converted into bombers. They will cruise at 175 m.p.h. and have sleeping accommodations for 16 passengers and a crew of 11, plus a large load of mail and express.

Jimmy Byrnes to Direct Campaign of Democrats

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—The private White House plan is for a three-man command to take the place of Jim Farley as campaign generalissimo. Head of the contemplated triumvirate will be Senator Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, who will hold the title of National Chairman. One of the ablest strategists in politics, Byrnes will be of tremendous help in placating ruffled regulars miffed by the third term and Wallace's selection.

Because of the pressure of his congressional duties, Jimmy won't be able to devote all his time to running the campaign. So two other party chiefs will be brought in to assist him.

One is Frank Walker, wealthy lawyer and chain movie theatre owner, who is an ace at money-raising but a washout in the hurly-burly of politics. Walker is one of the most likeable men in public affairs, but he dreads the limelight. He has told Roosevelt, to whom he is devoted, that he will help in the campaign in any capacity, but he does not want the chairmanship. So the plan is to use Walker where he can serve best, behind the scenes with some such title as Executive Director.

The other man is handsome Ed Flynn, Bronx boss and former New York Secretary of State. Flynn will handle the big Eastern voting centers, which he knows intimately.

Also in the cards is a house-cleaning of subordinate National Committee personnel.

Although re-elected for another term at Chicago, "Chip" Robert, secretary of the Committee, is slated to be replaced by an official more acceptable to the new leaders. "Chip", popular and charming, doesn't stand very strong with the inner circle.

Ruppel for Michelson

In a similar category is Charley Michelson, veteran press chief. However, Roosevelt likes him and he won't be dropped entirely. He will be supplemented by younger and more aggressive hitters, such as Louis Ruppel, slam-bang former managing editor of The Chicago Times, and Victor Sholis, Ruppel's political writer, who will be his lieutenant.

BETTER WEATHER SERVICE

BOSTON—New England is doing something about the weather, instead of waiting for it. When its individual forecasting service begins operating by Fall, forecasts will be issued four times per 24-hours. These will be at 1:30 a. m., 7:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

BOARD AWAITING NOTICE TO OPEN ELECTION PROBE

WASHINGTON C. H., July 26 —Horace C. Ireland, chairman of the Fayette County board of elections, stated Friday that he had received no formal order from Secretary of State George Neffner to conduct an investigation in the alleged fraud in the West Holland Precinct bond issue vote. He said that as soon as he receives such notice, action will be taken immediately.
